

Particularities in Evaluation of Public Investments Projects

Marian STOIAN, Professor, Ph. D
Ilinca MUNTEAN, Teaching Assistant

Abstract: Our article refers to public investment projects and their specific characteristics, the reasons why they are different from projects in the private sector.

One must consider the synergetic effect of public projects, the fact that their combined effects are, generally speaking, more important and even different from the effects of each project, in order to identify both beneficc and negative effects that public projects have over the local community.